DRASTIC ACTION TO AID COAL INDUSTRY URGED BY BLAYLOCK

Head of Mining Institute Advocates Closing Down of Some Mines and Reduction in Production Costs—Dr. Charles Cammell Sees No Decrease in Price of Gold

CALGARY, Sept. 13 (CP).—Drastic methods to assist coal mine operators of Canada, including the closing of some mines so the remainder could be worked on a proper basis, were recommended today by Dr. S. G. Blaylock, of Trail, president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, at the opening of the annual Western meeting of the institute here.

The lot of coal mine operators has "become almost unbearable," Dr. Blaylock declared. Operating costs must be lessened so that cost of coal to the railways would be lowered and the railways in turn would be enabled to cut the cost of hauling coal to further markets. Under present conditions, he declared, the general public had to pay higher prices for fuel than was justified.

LEAGUE HAS NEW DANGER

Poland Causes Anxiety by Ultimatum on Minority Rights

GENEVA, Sept. 13 (CP).—The League of Nations has a new danger to occupy it, one which may prove exceedingly troublesome.

He declared, in effect, that starting right now, Poland will not recognize international rules on the treatment of minorities in Poland; she will handle them as she thinks fit.

She may be wandering somewhere alone, they think—dazed from her harrowing experience.

Fire Is Followed By Martial Law

MAYOR OPENS DAHLIA SHOW

Melville Mayhew Awarded Special Prize for Best Bloom in Display

The seventh annual flower show of the Victoria Dahlia Society was officially opened at the Willows Fair yesterday by Mayor David Leeming, thus marking the second floral exhibition during this week at the Fair. Entirely new displays were arranged in the Main Building, so that those who visited this building earlier in the week will find something new to see again.

In opening the Fair, Mayor Leeming complimented the society on its effort, and the infinite variety of blooms, their coloring, size and various characteristics. He paid tribute to the exhibitors for the splendid co-operation they had given, thanked them for assisting so generously in beautifying Victoria and spoke at length on the gorgeousness of the display.

CIVIC EMBLEM

The Mayor said that in his opinion the choice for a civic flower emblem lay between gladioli and dahlias, with the dahlias probably having a slight edge on the gladioli. Mayor Leeming was introduced to the gathering by E. W. Whyte, president of the society, who has worked indefatigably to make the show a success. The Mayor at the close of his address was introduced to Frederic Hall, who brought the Burnaby district display to the Victoria Fair. Mr. Hall was loud in his praises of the Victoria show, and commended the directors for the wonderful treatment they had accorded visiting exhibitors from the Mainland.

To Melville Mayhew went the distinction of having the most beautiful dahlia bloom in the show. His "New Glory," a crimson flower, whose petals are tipped with white, was certainly commented upon by the many visitors, who inspected it. W. Elder exhibited the largest dahlia, a bloom that measured fifteen inches across, and yet did not lose any of its beauty in being so large.

STOP AND GO SIGNALS

The need for the introduction of automatic traffic signals in Victoria is being stressed again by Chief of Police Thomas Heatley, the official charged with the responsibility of maintaining uninterrupted and safe motor and pedestrian traffic in the business section of the city. The request for "stop and go" signals has been before the City Council for several months and no decision has yet been reached. The nearest approach to the introduction of these signals is the inclusion in the new traffic regulations by-law, of provisions for their operation, but the Mayor says it will take a month or two before this measure becomes law. By that time the Christmas shopping season will be in progress.

If it is the intention of this year's Council to put the signals into operation it would be better to have them operating a month or six weeks before the traffic becomes heavy, so that motorists and pedestrians may become accustomed to the change.

Victoria is practically the only City on the Coast that is not equipped. The cost, $5,000, is negligible as compared to the advantages of the new system. The Council should give the Chief the necessary authority to proceed with the installation. Automatic signals are no longer an experiment and, therefore, there does not seem to be any good reason for further delays.

CHINA AND SILVER

It was supposed at first that the silver policy of the United States would help China. The contrary is proving the case. There is grave disquiet over the situation in the Orient and the demand there is for stabilization of the price of silver. It was hoped that this would grow out of the international agreement signed last year, but the decision of the American Government last May to adopt a bimetallic policy means that the metal has risen steadily in price. Since June, Shanghai has exported silver to the value of $80,000 Mexican dollars. The rise in the price of silver tends to reduce the export of China and accentuate her adverse trade balance. It is stated that if the process of selling silver on a large scale continues, an embargo or other restriction on export may be necessary.

The effect of silver export from China has accentuated the sense of insecurity which has been growing because of internal strife and consequent demands of the Government for military expenditures. Trade has been depressed. Normally China exports more than she imports, but the margin is more than made good by the import of foreign capital and remittances from abroad. For some years past payments by China on account of past loans and investments have exceeded imports of new capital. The silver legislation of the United States and the consequent increase in price of the metal is not helping China. That country contends that her interest in silver is far greater than that of the United States and that she should have an influential voice regarding price stabilization. There is a possibility even that the American attitude may drive China off the silver standard.

THE NEW MODERATOR

The General Council of the United Church of Canada departed from its usual procedure when it elected as Moderator, Rev. Richard Roberts, D.D., of Toronto, at its sixth biennial session in Kingston, Ont. It has chosen a minister in charge of a congregation for this position. The only other occasion on which this was done was when Dr. G. C. Pidgeon, the first Moderator after union, held the chair for a year. The other four presiding officers have held official positions in the church. Drs. Endicott, Gunn and Moore were national executive heads, and Dr. Oliver was principal of Saskatoon College. The evident desire of the church is that its organization and administration is well in hand, it should draw upon its leaders in pulpits and parishes. Possibly there is fear that officialdom may take too large a place and even dominate the prophetic element in the church's leadership.

The new Moderator belongs to the prophetic order. Dr. Roberts is pre-eminently a preacher; indeed, he is rated by some as the foremost pulpit power of the United Church. After a notable career in Great Britain he became minister of the great American Presbyterian congregation in Montreal, under him, came into the United Church. His ministry at Sherburne Street Church, Toronto, has been marked by special gifts. Of Welsh descent, Dr. Roberts combines in his preaching the mystical and the practical and greatly moves his congregation in things spiritual. Dr. Roberts is known across the Dominion for his long and weekly contributions of "The Quiet Hour," in The New Outlook. He may be expected to preach widely during his term of office, and thereby intensify the deepening spiritual mood of the church.

AN EXCEPTIONAL TREATY

The evacuation of the Yemini territory in South Arabia by the troops of the conqueror calls attention to the exceptional type of treaty that now exists between the rulers of what may be termed the north and south divisions of the Arabian Peninsula. The northern ruler is King Ibn Saud, leader of the Wahabites and the southern ruler is Imam Yahya of Yemen. King Ibn Saud made a generous peace. The compact demands neither war indemnity nor disarmament. The conqueror annexed no territory to which the Yemen could advance a genuine claim. He merely bound the vanquished, as he bound himself, to be a good neighbor. It is an affirmation, in the words of one of the articles, of the common "bond of Moslem brotherhood and Arab descent" which is henceforth to govern the relations between the two Arabian States. The good faith of King Ibn Saud's signature is shown in the speedy withdrawal of troops from his erstwhile enemy's land.

Further significance attaches to this new type of compact as being evidence of the growing movement towards a united Arab people. One of the main causes of division has been the fanaticism of those holding diverse Moslem creeds. The Wahabites held the heretic more than they do the infidel. The Zaidis, who form the most powerful element in Yemen, are anathema to them; yet these two are the High Contracting Parties of this treaty "of Moslem friendship and Arab brotherhood." The cause of this amity is the desire to promote, in the words of the treaty's preamble, "the unity of the Moslem-Arab nation, to raise its prestige and enhance its dignity and independence."

Fanaticism has been submerged in patriotism and in the dream of a restored Pan-Moslem-Arabic empire. The fact that the treaty calls for a "united front against any attack on the Arabian Peninsula" is not to be disregarded by the European States, and especially, as The London Times points out, by Great Britain which has just concluded a Treaty of Friendship and Mutual Co-Operation with the ruler of the Yemen.

FRED PERRY'S VICTORY

That a man with a bound-up right ankle, with the posterior tibial tendon strained, should win the Lawn Tennis Championship of the United States, is an indication of the character of the player Fred Perry, of England, is. He is a showman at tennis and has a flair for concentrating the attention of the galleries he plays before. His feat in the American championship, which he won for the second time, was remarkable in the fact that throughout the rounds he played he only lost three sets in all. It is true that it was a far greater feat winning at Wimbledon, though there he was on his home courts. He won both his last major tournaments, the first when only just recovered from the strained ankle which he sustained in the French championships, a happening which blasted his hope of winning that event, and now the American title after straining that ankle again in his match in the semi-final with Kirby.

Such achievements indicate the greatness of Perry's play. He is easily the world's premier amateur player, and it is doubtful if there is any professional who could beat him. The gallant fight made against him by Wilmer Allison was, perhaps, only possible because Perry had necessarily to take every precaution not to overstrain his injured ankle. The fact does detract from Allison's performance, but it shows that the victory might have been a great deal simpler if Perry had been able to exert his full strength of play throughout the match. As well as precision of stroking, Perry seems to have greater will power and more concentrated physical activity than any other present-day player.

Mr. J. B. Priestley, the novelist, says nobody is busy inventing quietness, yet the time may come when that quality is acknowledged to be the most important and most expensive luxury on the market. He says that "whatever is being put up or pulled down introduces a new orgy of noise, with the pneumatic electric drill, that devilish contrivance, leading the chorus." Mr. Priestley asks if this continuous assault upon the ears is necessary. It is not, he says. Those who contrive the wonderful ingenuities of the time could also contrive means of silencing them; the trouble is, however, that there is no money in it.

BENEDICTION

With weary heart and aching head I came,
With eardrums ringing and with tired eyes,
Out of the iron city's roar and flame
To roan green temples where the wood-dove flies.
Oh, warm benignity of peace that lies
About me like a mantle when I seek
To ease my memory of the wasting cries
Of wheels and car-horns! In one blessed week
The wise trees with their gentle healing hands
Have cured the torments of a nerve-wrought year,
As though among the boughs a guardian stands.
And calls, "Oh, shaken, world-worn friend come here!"
With green leaf-filtered light and leafy strands, Silence will bring the gates of heaven near!"
—Stanston A. Coblentz, in The New York Times.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

In politics, what begins in fear usually ends in folly.—Cicero.

An astute observer of the course of human events is reported to have said that it is a dangerous thing for governments to interfere with business; that the less governments attempted to regulate business the better both for business and for the public. But when that observation was made the flower of democracy may have been in the bud. Today democracy is in full flower and many governments are attempting to regulate and to direct business. A few days ago the Canadian Chamber of Commerce deplored the tendency of governments to interfere with business and indicated with some apprehension the consequences of this interference. Later Mr. Beatty, head of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, spoke on the same subject, and said practically the same thing. Governments are composed of politicians, and politicians and business are mixed—if they can be mixed—produce a dangerous compound.

Of course we shall be told that the members of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and Mr. Beatty represent capital, and that there are other elements as well as capital to be considered when considering the relationship between governments and business. That is true, and the existing industrial and labor situation in the United States proves it. The government of the United States is attempting to regulate business, and the apparent result is business and industrial chaos in that country. The government has put a weapon in the hand of radical agitators, and the revolutionary elements are using it.

Business in the United States was proceeding in its ordered way even in the face of an obvious depression and the prevalence of unemployment until the President was persuaded by his Brain Trust that politics and business could safely be mixed and a short cut taken to prosperity. The National Recovery Act was adopted and put in force. That was the first step towards mixing politics with business. One step led to another. The last, and probably the final, step was the attempt to fix prices of all kinds of products, the hours of labor and the rates of pay for labor.

The attempt to fix prices of products has been abandoned, but the attempt to fix hours of labor and rates of pay is still proceeding, and the consequence has been big strikes and little strikes and rumors of still more strikes. The history of all strike movements is that radical agitators gain control of them and that the reasonable and conservative elements who prefer the paths of peace and are endowed with the will to work are intimidated and forced to join the revolutionary procession. The leaders in the strike movements believe they will be supported in their demands by the government, that the representatives of the industries will be intimidated and forced to yield, or that the government will be compelled to take over the industries and operate them. The question of profit or loss under such operation was not of the least consequence. If there were a loss, it could be met by the taxpayers, as had been done in the case of the act for the assistance of the agricultural industry. The government is squandering so many billions in attempting to mix politics with business that another billion or two need not be viewed with apprehension.

The President and his advisers do not foresee the possibilities of the forces they had released from the bottle charged with dangerous explosives. They had put a weapon in the hands of the agitators, but they did not anticipate that the instrument would be used for the purpose of beating them into submission. Political and economic revolutions have broken out elsewhere, and the leaders in those movements have their agents in all countries. The police and the politicians of the United States appear to be in a state bordering on panic. The fire on the Morro Castle has been attributed to an incendiary. Bombs have been exploded in public places and sticks of dynamite have been discovered in public conveyances.

The dreaded terror is stalking by day and by night. It will use any weapon that comes to its hand. The strike will suit its purposes for the delivery of a preliminary stroke. Strikes provoke riots, and riots breed revolutions. Thus far troops have succeeded in maintaining a semblance of order in the States which are the centre of the textile industries; but the conditions are still dangerous. The operators of the textile factories declare they cannot conduct their business under the conditions demanded by the strikers. Will the government take over the concern and attempt to prove that politics and business can be mixed with profit to the state and satisfaction to labor?

ROTARIANS HOLD NOVEL CONTEST

Baseball Game Founded on Knowledge of Membership Supplied Entertainment

The programme given at the luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club, yesterday, was a novel contest, designed to test the acquaintance of members with the names of other members and their addresses. Two teams were selected, and in the role of players they were called upon to give these particulars regarding any member to whom the baseball was tossed. According to the answers, the players were declared out or enabled to reach base.

With umpire, captains and something of the noise that accompanies a game, the programme proved very entertaining.

The game had also the effect of calling to the attention of members the fact that they should be on terms of close acquaintance with the other members of the club.

READING FACILITIES

Sir,—May I ask through the medium of your paper why Esquimalt should contribute towards the upkeep of the Public Library. The officers realize the awful suffering they are helping to keep alive in the breasts of those who like study and literature.

Do they understand that they are retarding evolution, and helping to keep alive the revolutionary spirit. The first real need of any one who is out of employment is reading matter, and the bigger the choice the better. The attitude of mind of any community which has literature is incomprehensible.

EMILY G. ZELIUS,
617 Constance Avenue, Esquimalt, B.C., September 11, 1934.

Sir,—Reading in the daily newspapers that Mrs. Rod La Rocque, the former Vice Roky, Hungarian actress, gave up her career on account of her foreign accent, reminds me of another actress, a Canadian lady, married to a Polish Count. A few years ago while on a visit to her native country she gave a lecture at the Empress Hotel when among other things, she pleaded for greater forgiveness "with the stranger that is within our gates," having gone herself through a foreigner's sad experience.

A foreigner in whatever country he may be is generally considered a bit queer or of an inferior mentality because of the awkward way in which he expresses himself in the language of his adoption. We feel inclined to think also that all other languages are less expressive than our own, whereas we have our particular beauty and are equally loved by their owners. The little Kaffir girl when reading the Bible pitted the English children for not knowing her language for in her mind it was the Jewish spoken when on earth and it was sure to be the one used in Heaven!

If we would only stop for a few moments and think of some of the peculiarities and idioms of our own tongue we would realize the difficulties the foreigner has to put up with, and instead of being impatient with him we should ask him to be patient with us. At any rate, perhaps we should be prejudiced against any one not speaking as fluently as a native. We will remember the case of a young foreigner who applied for a position in an office; his hands made it appear that he hardly knew what he meant. Leaving that office he went to a real estate office to invest his little capital he had brought with him from the homeland. He had hardly opened his mouth when the man in the office asked him what he meant and they had just the thing he wanted! He could not help smiling while the French say "bon entendeur, demi mot suffit!" (To a good ear, hearing half a word suffices!)

The confusion of tongues dates back to more than 2,000 years B.C. (Genesis 11:1-9) when God caused the densely congregated people to scatter over the whole world. In the economy of God, however, the day has been fixed when all the saved ones (believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved) shall be reunited there where there shall be only one language, one race and no boundaries. Then there will be the land where a new song shall be sung to Him, "Who has redeemed us to God by His Blood, men and women out of every kindred and tongue and people and nation, where there is neither Greek nor Jew—Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free, but Christ is all and in all!"

Wife (at dance): "This is the twelfth time you've been to the refreshment buffet."
Husband: "Oh, that's alright. I tell everybody I'm getting something for you."

SHOW PICTURES OF FORD PLANT

Entertaining Programme Given by National Motors—Repeated Tonight and Tomorrow

National Motor Company introduced an innovation to Victoria last night in the showrooms when the officials in charge presented an entertaining and educational programme of talking pictures.

These pictures illustrated the operations in the factory of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., at East Windsor, and the principles of the design of the Ford V-8. The programme was interspersed with pictures of races that have made racing history on this continent, including Sir Malcolm Campbell's epic of the track, the Schneider Cup race at Indianapolis, the Gilmore Gold Cup and Elgin road race.

RHAPSODY IN STEEL
Possibly the most entertaining feature of the entire programme was the half-hour reel, "Rhapsody in Steel," the original being produced at A Century of Progress in Chicago at a cost of $50,000. It depicted operations in the gigantic steel mills of the Ford Motor Company at Detroit, and the River Rouge plant, to a symphonic accompaniment and concluding with a clever animated cartoon.

Interesting too, was the film showing the first Ford cars ever built and all in action. Henry Ford is shown at a wheel of his first Ford and also his latest creation. The same programme will be shown at 8 o'clock tonight and at the same hour tomorrow night.

Last Rites for Mrs. J. Parfitt Here Tomorrow

Caesar Garnered Wealth From Richest Gold Mine Newly Found in Portugal

SAN FRANCISCO.—Caesar's source of staggering wealth, the gold fields from which his "mining engineers" drew the inimitable wealth that financed his schemes of empire, have been "rediscovered" by two Americans, one of them, John G. Hopper, a well-known San Franciscan.

The gold field that contributed so largely to the fabulous wealth of Julius Caesar is in Portugal, twenty miles north of the Tagus River, in the province of Beira, on the outskirts of the tiny village of Villa de Rei.

The other "rediscoverer" is also

TRIBUTE PAID BY COMMUNITY

Great Congregation Present at Funeral of Mrs. David Spencer Yesterday

Impressive testimony to the memory of one "who filled the whole measure of her days with continuity of kind deeds" was evident in the great congregation present at the funeral, yesterday afternoon, of the late Mrs. David Spencer, at Metropolitan United Church.

The service was simple, without an address of any kind, although the fully vested choir was present and led the singing of the hymns, "O, for a Thousand Tongues to Sing" and "My God, the Spring of All My Joys." Rev. E. F. Church, pastor of the Metropolitan Church, had charge of the rites and read the prayers. Rev. Daniel Walker read the two Scriptural selections, Psalm cxvi ("I Love the Lord"), and Psalm xlii ("The Lord is My Shepherd"), and Rev. Dr. W. J. Sipprell gave a prayer.

Preceding the service at the church, there was a service at the family residence on Moss Street, this being in charge of Rev. Thomas H. McCrossan, of Seattle, a son-in-law of Mrs. Spencer. In addition to a brief address, he read two of Mrs. Spencer's favorite hymns, "How Happy Every Child of Grace" and "Servant of God, Well Done." The text of the short sermon was taken from the Gospel of St. John, Chapter ii ("Jesus Wept"). Mr. Church took the committal service at Ross Bay Cemetery.

Every section of the community, including the Provincial Government, the city, various church and benevolent organizations, service clubs and welfare groups, was represented in the big congregation at the church.

Sixty-five members of the Spencer family occupied pews in the front of the church, and the entire western section of the auditorium was reserved for the staff of David Spencer's, Ltd., 325 of whom were present. Honorary pallbearers were the same as for Mr. Spencer's funeral, fourteen years ago: John A. Grant, Dr. S. G. Clemence, W. H. Bone, E. W. Whittington, J. H. Baker and Arthur Lee. The active pallbearers were W. B. Grant, B. Wilkinson, O. Eby, F. Jeremy, F. Hawkes and W. H. Wightman.

WELLINGTON HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

NANAIMO, Sept. 13.—The home of Dr. A. MacInnes, at Wellington, was completely destroyed by fire at 5:30 this afternoon. Dr. and Mrs. MacInnes had shortly before gone for a walk, and as no fire, or even left in the house, the origin is attributed to a short circuit in the lighting system. It was impossible to save any of the furniture. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

Caesar Garnered Wealth From Richest Gold Mine Newly Found in Portugal

SAN FRANCISCO.—Caesar's source of staggering wealth, the gold fields from which his "mining engineers" drew the inimitable wealth that financed his schemes of empire, have been "rediscovered" by two Americans, one of them, John G. Hopper, a well-known San Franciscan.

The gold field that contributed so largely to the fabulous wealth of Julius Caesar is in Portugal, twenty miles north of the Tagus River, in the province of Beira, on the outskirts of the tiny village of Villa de Rei.

The other "rediscoverer" is also a Californian, Arthur Prill, a picturesque old-time prospector. WORKED IN 476 A.D.

Not only was the gold mine worked in the days of Caesar, but it was one of the principal sources of the opulence of the ancient Roman Empire, falling into disuse only with the fall of the Roman Empire in 476 A.D.

Hopper, a mining engineer, explorer, inventor and one of the first Americans to join the Foreign Legion during the Great War, was once an associate of former President Herbert Hoover in the development of gold mines in Mexico.

Both Hopper and Prill have succeeded in reopening the ancient mine. The field, according to Hopper, who made a careful survey over an extended period, is one of the richest he has ever inspected. Eight lodes are assaying at 8 to 20 grams per ton.

GOT $12,000,000
According to Hopper, the Romans must have extracted at least $12,000,000 from it by the most primitive panning of the alluvials in the southern portion of the gold field. The whole mother lode ledge in the northern portion, which is all quartz, was untouched, because the Romans had no means to reduce it, Hopper wrote to friends here.

"My partner and I," he said, "obtained thirty concessions from the Portuguese Government covering practically all the ledge, so as to eliminate any gold rush. We are selling twenty-five concessions to British and one to American companies for 10,000,000 francs, but are retaining a 10 per cent share for ourselves nevertheless."

GOVT GIVEN SHARE
"This will enable us to install machinery and work the concessions we have retained for ourselves. The Portuguese Government is co-operating with us because we are giving it shares which will aid in diminishing the deficit of the national railroads and other Government branches."

Hopper, who is crippled from wounds received in the war, told how he rode muleback twenty miles a day prospecting the countryside. "The goldfields are five miles long and three miles wide. We estimate that by working concessions, a minimum of $2,000 a day will be extracted. The lodes are ten to twenty feet wide and forty feet deep."

Hopper accompanied the late Raold Amundsen on one of his polar explorations; invented one of the first six-cylinder automobiles; an airplane landing light used by the United States in the war; discovered oil on the island of Crete; explored Alaska, and was recently in the news when he fought two duels in Paris, firing and wounding opponents while leaning on a crutch and stick.

DRASTIC ACTION TO SAVE INDUSTRY

encouraging results. Dr. Cammell added: "And it may not be amiss to stress that international authorities see no slackening, or likely slackening in the future, in the demand for the precious metal."

"The enhanced value of the gold exports has much to do with the Dominion's total foreign trade increasing in the twelve months ending May 31, 1934, to $1,150,568,900 from $923,003,560."

GREAT BOON TO CANADA

"The increasing price of gold has added immensely to the Dominion's wealth. A great boon has been conferred upon Canada, with her immense gold resources. In the raising of the price of the one product that above all others is most readily saleable," declared Dr. Cammell.

The deputy minister said the world demand for gold was now greater than ever. History showed the price of gold had been periodically raised through the ages, but never lowered. He did not believe it was likely now to recede to the recent standard level of $20.67 per ounce.

*Clothes cost dollars...
Chipso pennies save clothes*

Let's look at saving from every angle.

"Chipso saves rubbing wear"

"I've found out that it's not how much soap I get for my money, but how much suds I get from my soap," says Mrs. Herbert F. Deyhle. "In skimpy suds, you have to rub the clothes so hard that you wear them out right in the tub."

Chipso saves work and it saves the clothes, because it gives me creamy, four-inch-thick suds that absorb the dirt. It never takes more than 15 minutes' soaking in these rich Chipso suds to give me snowy white clothes."

"Chipso saves fading"

"Where I've found that inferior soaps eventually cost me money in weakened materials that split easily, and in faded colors," says Mrs. J. E. England. "With Chipso I never have to worry. My white clothes come shades whiter in Chipso suds with less rubbing. And it isn't that lifeless whiteness that comes from artificial bleaches, either. Chipso never washes the color out of colored clothes. Our clothes wear and wear. They look nice until they are really outgrown."

"One soap—Chipso—for everything"

"I find it cheaper, and more convenient, to buy one good soap, Chipso, and use it for everything, than it is to buy one very cheap soap for common things and another expensive soap for the things I want to take care of. Chipso is so nice to my hands when I use it for dishwashing that I'm not afraid to use it for my sheer underwear, my best table linens, all our woollens."

A. D. GANONG IS VISITOR TO CITY

President of Well-Known Candy Manufacturing Firm Brings Optimistic Message

Bringing a message of optimism and a report of better times from Eastern Canada, A. D. Ganong, M.P. for St. Stephen, N.B., who is president of the well-known candy firm of Ganong Brothers Limited, arrived in Victoria yesterday. With Mr. Ganong came his son, Philip Ganong, who is sales executive for the candy firm. They are staying at the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Ganong also brought a note of warning with him. He cautioned that travel volume and other conspicuous activities in Canadian business tend to create the impression that the total improvement is greater than it really is.

ROTATING EARTH WAS EVER SOLID

ABERDEEN (CP).—Considerable climatic changes on the face of the earth in past centuries, of which there is ample evidence, were probably caused by periodic softening of the substratum and a rotation of the surface blocks around parts where softening had not taken place, declared Prof. W. T. Gordon today before the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Delivering the presidential address to the plant life section, Professor Gordon rejected the theory that wholesale shifting of continents, involving vast changes in the position of the North and South Poles ago, had been responsible for the startling changes in climate in different sections.

Plants afford one of the best indexes of climatic changes, the professor said, and afford evidence these changes have been very considerable in past times. Plant fossils whose living relations inhabit tropical lands have been found in rock formations in Greenland, for instance.

But the theory of widespread shifting of continents could not be accepted, said Prof. Gordon. "The earth so far as we can see has always been solid and rotating at an enormous rate. If we are to assume wholesale melting of the substratum rocks then the speed of rotation would soon play havoc with the crust."

CONVICTED OF SOWING WEEDS

Farmer Creates Precedent in Wrong Doing—Crime Paralleled Only in Bible

PRINCE RUPERT, Sept. 13 (CP).—Shannon Van Elst, farmer, was found guilty by a jury in assize court, tonight, of sowing noxious weeds on his neighbor's farm.

Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald, presiding judge, said he had never seen or heard of a case like it. The only parallel he could find was in the parable in the thirteenth chapter of St. Matthew. "Perhaps it will be another 2,000 years before there is nothing new under the sun," remarked His Lordship. He remanded Van Elst to the end of the assizes for sentence.

WILLFUL DAMAGE

The accused act, the Crown contended, starting when James Owens, the neighbor, refused to allow Van Elst to vote at an election at which Owens was returning officer. The charge accused Van Elst of doing willful damage by sowing noxious weeds.

The two men live in the Evelyn district of the Bulkley Valley, West of Smithers.

Manufacture of Famous Food Shown Here

Demonstration of the Making of Shredded Wheat in Spencer's Grocery Department

Visitors to the grocery department of David Spencer, Ltd., can now exactly see the way in which the famous product of the Canadian Shredded Wheat Company is produced. The display, including a miniature shredder, which operates on the same principle as the mammoth machines in the plant at Niagara Falls, home of Shredded Wheat, is under the supervision of E. J. Sweeney, direct factory representative.

The process is a very simple one, so devised that "the vitally different food," is whole wheat, nothing added, nothing taken away. From the sunny wheat fields of the Dominion, choice wheat is shipped to the spotless plant at Niagara Falls. The carloads of golden grain are automatically unloaded and the wheat is stored in huge concrete tanks or elevators. Before it goes to the bakery, it undergoes nine different steps in the most thorough cleaning process. Fans take out the dust, screens sift the grains, magnets remove any metal bits which might be present, but most marvelous are the series of whirling wheels so devised that one set picks out the tiny cockle seeds, another the broken grains and another gathers any large kernels, such as corn, which might have become mixed with the wheat. When all this cleaning has been done, nothing remains but pure, clean wheat; every grain whole, sound and perfect.

COOKED, THEN "SHREDDED"

A measured quantity of this wheat is steam-cooked under pressure in big sealed kettles—just so long, at just the right temperature. The cooked wheat, swollen to double its natural size, is now transferred to big steel tanks to cool and to mellow. From here it goes to the mysterious process which fascinates everyone—the forming of the Shredded Wheat Biscuits. And this is how it is done:

The wheat is conveyed through a tube which runs along the top of the machine, dropping the wheat down to twenty-nine pairs of grooved steel rollers. Squeezed between these rollers, under 1,700 pounds pressure, the wheat falls in a continuous stream of strands or "shreds" onto a moving belt below. Layer on layer, the strands fall from each pair of rollers, until, at the end of the long machine, they have piled up to the proper thickness, and the stream of wheat looks, for all the world, like one endless "biscuit." In fact, that is just what it is, until it is automatically cut into proper biscuit lengths, and the biscuits are transferred by an ingenious vacuum process to the baking pans, to roll down to the ovens.

INTO THE OVENS

There is no "rule of thumb" in the making of Shredded Wheat, for every step is exactly controlled. The pans of biscuit, on their "treadle" ride in the ovens, are baked at exactly the right temperature, exactly the right number of minutes, and in due time, come back to the oven door to be removed—crisp, fragrant, golden brown and utterly tempting.

After a trip through the drier, where any remaining moisture is evaporated to insure crispness, the biscuits find themselves in the packing room, where nimble fingers of girls pack them snugly in the famous cartons, familiar in millions of homes. Then the cartons go into a stout shipping container, then down a roller pathway to the shipping room, and, "in no time at all," they've begun their journey to the grocery stores and the dining tables of the Dominion.

Is Forced to Obtain Legal Resurrection

MONTREAL, Sept. 13 (CP).—From the grave in which he had been doctored by a relief investigator, arose an unemployed citizen of Montreal today.

To Alderman Dan P. Gillmor, K.C., he complained that he could not get on the relief lists.

No believer in the occult, Alderman Gillmor stuck by his guns, read an investigator's report and insisted his visitor was dead and, therefore, not in need of assistance. Legal "resurrection" is expected to follow shortly.

"Of course, it's awfully good of Uncle Tom," sighed Mrs. Newjohn, "but I do wish he wasn't so careless!"

"What's he done now?" queried her young husband.

"When he asked me what I'd like for a wedding present I told him a nice tea set," groaned the wife, "and he's sent a settee!"

These Scotties Appreciate Getsol

Dear Sirs:

Your Getsol Powder for lice and itches is certainly wonderful. I used it on two Scotch Terriers which were alive with lice and eggs and your powder killed the lice and destroyed the eggs. After twenty years' experience with dogs, I have never used a better insecticide. It is the best insect powder I have ever used.

OLD-TIME DANCES

St. Saviour's Men's Auxiliary commenced its old-time dances for the coming winter on Tuesday evening, and each alternate Tuesday has been set aside for one of these popular evenings in the Parish Hall, Henry Street. Messrs. J. Smith and D. Campbell were masters of ceremonies on Tuesday, and the auxiliary had arranged for some free lessons and instructions for those who were not familiar with the dances. It was most gratifying to the committee to see how the young and old joined in the old favorites, which included lancers, Velets, quadrilles, Spanish waltz, Boston two-step, French minuet, Circassian circle, schottische, La Varsovienne, hesitation waltz and others.

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT

PARIS (UP).—Getting up excitement over the Fall collections is somewhat like manifesting enthusiasm for Thursday night supper when the cook is off. But we have to eat, and so do the dressmakers have to make and show their handiwork.

Whether in an effort to appear more confidential, or whether to sound out their patrons and the press on reactions, the big men and women in the haute couture business are letting out more information previous to the collection showings than ever they have before.

Fabric manufacturers will let you come and see what they have done for the dressmaking houses, and when the actual creators of the new modes tell you that it is probably true that we shall see this and so in their collections, they watch your face like a hawk to see how you "take it."

For instance, we know from first-hand information that skirts at a number of houses are going to be shorter and tighter; that hats are going back to the down-over-one-eye school; that materials are going to show an even greater richness and luxury than they have before; that there are going to be a lot of two-faced fabrics that will completely change the nature of the costume when reversed; there is going to be a lot of black; shoulders are narrowing, and in some instances are even getting rounded; accessories are increasing in importance, making one or two back-ground frocks or ensembles serve for several sets of accessories. We know that, but we won't go any further, for collection time is almost at hand and then you can take it or leave it—as you have always done before.

TODAY'S FASHION TIP

Tighter, shorter skirts; richer, finer fabrics.

At Windermere Hotel

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Lewis, of Nanaimo, are at the Windermere Hotel.

THIRTY-HOUR WEEK IS AIM OF CONGRESS

The proposal to enlarge the scope of the Federal unions came in a report of the committee on constitution and laws, submitted by Fred White, M.P.P., of Calgary. Carried by a large majority, the new plan will go into effect whenever the incoming executive council decides.

TO MEET OPPOSITION

P. M. Draper, of Ottawa, secretary-treasurer of the congress, said that if a union will not accept a charter from an international union, the Trades and Labor Congress will provide it with a Federal charter. In an effort to combat the Workers' Unity League and the All-Canadian Congress of Labor.

Contributory unemployment insurance, urged in a resolution from the Montreal Trades and Labor Council, received strong endorsement.

STAND ON CODES

Strong trade union organization was regarded as essential to the endorsement of minimum wage laws, the report on industrial control and the minimum wage declared. Noting the present-day trend toward codified industry, the congress passed a series of recommendations designed to prevent abuses of any new plan.

It desired provision for amendment of such laws and the appointment of inspectors to enforce them. Uniformity of working hours and laws throughout the Dominion was stressed as necessary. These objectives could only be secured through amendment of the British North America Act, the report declared. Other recommendations included insistence on the right to form trade unions and to conduct collective bargaining.

Tom Moore, president of the congress, opposed non-contributory insurance because it would require proof of the question of need. Labor, he declared, must go carefully before changing its adopted policy in this respect.

Bridge Tea To Be Held By Institute

The regular meeting of the Victoria Cohnaught Seamen's Institute was held in the institute yesterday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. W. R. Sayer, in the chair. Before the business meeting commenced, the members stood in silent tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. A. W. R. Wilby and in sympathy to Colonel A. W. R. Wilby. Among the correspondence received was a letter from headquarters in London, enclosing a letter from an apprentice, Mr. Oll, an orphan, who visited here on the Offington Court, when she was here lodging. He said that the happiest times he had ever had were spent at the Victoria Seamen's Institute. He is now at sea on the Carnarvon Castle.

The members decided that instead of holding the bridge tea at the Empress Hotel this month, and the anniversary tea in November, that the anniversary tea would be changed to a bridge tea, to be held in the hall, with Mrs. David Kerr as convener, assisted by members of the general committee. The date will be announced later.

There are still a number of taggers needed for the tag day to be held tomorrow. The headquarters will be at 1426 Douglas Street, and will be opened at 8:30 a.m. Mrs. Vernon Thomson and Mrs. Healy Kerr will be in charge. The St. James' Sunday School, which meets in the institute on Sunday mornings, will be in charge of the market corner, and Mrs. David Kerr will be in charge of the corner at Kresge's.

Little Bedtime Stories

Sammy Sits Up All Night

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Sammy Jay sat in the dark and shivered. Sammy was lonely, more lonely than he had ever supposed anybody could be. And to tell the truth Sammy Jay was scared. Yes, sir, that was just the way Sammy Jay felt—scared. Every time a leaf rustled Sammy jumped almost out of his shoes. His heart went pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat. He could hear it himself, at least he thought he could, and it seemed to him that if Hooty the Owl should happen to come along he would surely hear it.

You see it was the first time in all his life that Sammy Jay had not gone to sleep just as soon as he jolly round, red Mr. Sun had pulled his rosy nightcap on and gone to bed behind the purple hills. But to-night Sammy sat in the darkest, thickest part of a big pine tree and kept blinking his eyes to keep from going to sleep. He had made up his mind that he wouldn't go to sleep at all that night, no matter how lonely and frightened he might be. He just would keep his eyes and his ears wide open.

What was he doing it for? Why, because all the little meadow and forest people insisted that every night lately Sammy Jay had spent a great part of his time screaming in the harsh, unpleasant way he does during the day, and some of them were very cross because they said that he waked them when they wanted to sleep. Now Sammy knew better. He never in his life had screamed in the night unless—well, unless he did it in his sleep and didn't know it. So he had made up his mind to keep awake all of this night and see if in the morning anyone would say that he had waked them up.

He had watched the black shadows creep through the green forest and grow blacker and blacker. The blacker they grew the lonelier he became. By and by it was so dark that he couldn't see anything at all, and every little noise made him shiver. It is easy to be brave in daylight, but in the dark, when you cannot see a thing, every little sound seems twice as loud as it really

Low prices attract attention but fine quality is the best 'bargain' when it comes to tea.

Fine tea is richly flavoured, clear as crystal and healthful. Common tea is merely an indifferent beverage.

'SALADA' TEA

RECORD ENTRY IS ANTICIPATED

Keen Interest Being Shown in Saanich Fair Opening Next Wednesday

SAANICHTON, Sept. 13.—Indications point to a record entry for the Saanich Fair, opening ceremonies of which take place on Wednesday, (Visitors' Day), with Premier Pattullo officiating at 2 o'clock.

The cattle classes will again create considerable interest and the best of Jersey and Holstein cattle on the peninsula will be shown. The two classes for boys and girls will provide much competition, as the young people of the district are keen competitors, being encouraged by the Jersey Heifer Club, which is serving its purpose by developing young stock breeders to maintain the reputation of the district.

The horse section classes have been revised this year, and a new class, a "drawing contest," will be interesting. Swine, goats and rabbits are always good sections.

Remarkable comments for the last fair have been made by the Government officials regarding the egg display and it is expected again this year it will be hard to beat.

The Dog Show, comprising six groups with a class for boys and girls, twelve years and under, will be judged by Miss A. L. Hickling of Nanaimo.

Colin Frause, convener of the photography section, has again been fortunate in obtaining a collection of photographic subjects from the Victoria Camera Club. The photography classes will, this year, be free of entry fee being charged with the exception of the class provided for advanced photographers.

There will be the usual excellent display of jams, bottled fruits, etc., and cooking, sewing and knitting.

The ever-popular Highland events will commence at 10:30 on Wednesday morning. The school sports and other attractions, on Wednesday afternoon, will be supplied, luncheon and afternoon tea being provided on both Tuesday and Wednesday, also hot dog and candy stand in the hall grounds.

Zala's Orchestra will provide the music for the annual dance of the society on Wednesday evening.

HORTICULTURISTS HEAR INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS

MECHOSIN, Sept. 13.—The Horticultural section of Mechinon and District Community Club held a short business meeting on Monday evening, after which Professor Straight, of the Experimental Farm, gave a lecture to an intensely interested audience. He showed four watermelon specimens in the open at Saanich Experimental Farm, and which were cut up for everyone to taste.

He gave also an instructive talk on landscape gardening, pollenization of seeds, and other forms of propagation, cutting, layering, etc. There was also a demonstration of grafting, pot-layering, and the treatment of shrubs and fruit trees at transplantation. The next meeting and lecture will be held on the second Monday in October.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY HORTICULTURISTS

SIDNEY, Sept. 13.—Officers elected by the North and South Saanich Horticultural Society for the coming year are as follows: President, L. E. Taylor; vice-president, J. J. White; secretary, Mrs. E. W. Hammond; treasurer, J. D. Nimmo; executive, Mrs. J. J. White, Alex McDonald, M.P.P., C. E. Toomer, J. E. Bohrer, J. A. Nunn, Ray Woodridge and C. E. McTavish; judges for monthly competitions, J. A. Nunn, C. E. Toomer; librarian, Mrs. Freeman King; representative to V.I.H.A. Mrs. J. S. A. Bastin; convener of children's garden contest, J. E. Bohrer.

Rev. D. Stuart Holden, vicar for many years of St. Paul's, Portman Square, died August 10 in Scotland. Dr. Holden was for a long time chairman of China Inland Mission and was well known in American and Britain for his defence of evangelism.

High Standard Attained At Ladysmith Exhibition

LADYSMITH, Sept. 13.—The annual Fall Show was opened yesterday evening before a good crowd of visitors. High Standard officially declared the exhibition open, and remarked that, although he was no expert on the exhibits displayed in the hall, he felt that the whole show demonstrated a high standard of excellence, and that Ladysmith could be justly proud of the things produced in the district. He commented in high terms on the art displays of the local schools.

The women's section deserved praise, while in such matters as potatoes, apples and garden and field produce generally, Rev. C. McDermid, vice-president of the Agricultural Society, stated that in many years of experience at various shows and fairs he had noticed nothing finer.

Mayor W. W. Walkem congratulated the society on its untiring success in Fall shows year after year in the face of trying circumstances, while N. M. Poulsen, president of the Board of Trade, remarked that the work of the society was invaluable in many ways, not the least of these being the sterling advertising the district gained through the many notable displays.

J. Twentyman, president of the Agricultural Society, introduced the speakers. The judges in the various divisions were: Mr. McDermid, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Haggar, Mr. Kyle and Mr. Brown, while Mrs. Spencer adjudicated in the women's sections.

Despite a slight decrease in the amount of prize inducements, the entries were slightly more numerous than those of last year, losses in some classes being more than offset by gains in others.

FAST-PACED FILM
AT THE DOMINION

Harold Lloyd Makes Return to Screen in the Gripping "Cat's Paw"—Strong Cast

Harold Lloyd appears first in "The Cat's Paw," the feature opening today at the Dominion Theatre, as the son of an American missionary, who has spent virtually all his life with his father in the interior of China. At twenty-seven, his folks feel it is time for him to return to his native land, and seek himself a wife. He thus is thrown into the maelstrom of life in an American city of 400,000 at first like a fish out of water.

He unknowingly becomes the tool of unscrupulous politicians, but, when he becomes mayor of the city, through accident, he tries to apply Chinese philosophy to his operations of the Government. He refuses to become "The Cat's Paw" of the defunct gang, and, in turn, they frame him.

How he extricates himself from an unenviable position, forms the basis of the finest story the comedian has ever filmed, and carries an audience through a sweeping change of comedy, drama and thrilling adventure.

Touch is one of the five special senses; tactile sense.

FINE ORCHESTRA
ON EMPIRE STAGE

Arthur Gleason and Manhattan Serenaders Featured in "Penthouse Follies"

Another first-class stage entertainment entitled "The Penthouse Follies" will open its Victoria engagement at the Empire Theatre this afternoon and will appear twice this evening and again tomorrow and Monday afternoon and evening.

Featured with this revue is Arthur Gleason and his Manhattan Serenaders, one of the best-known dance orchestras of New York and Chicago. This orchestra has appeared over leading radio stations and has also played at large New York and Chicago hotels.

Other artists with this revue are Paige and Jewett, who do a European novelty act; Hal and Baby Crider, a sensational dance and comedy team; Gleason and Allyn, who do a smart musical act; George Latour and his comedy of talented artists; Bill Joy and his company, in a flash dancing act that is the last word in syncopated rhythm; Paul Green, who was known at the Chicago Fair as "The Human Pretzel," and Harry and Billie Clark, dance novelists.

PLAYHOUSE Most versatile of theatre screen stars, Warner Baxter has yet to play a role which has not increased his popularity. From the bold, bad bandit of "In Old Arizona" to the harassed producer of "Stand Up and Cheer!" Baxter has never been out of character. He assays a new type, however, in "Such Women Are Dangerous," now at the Playhouse Theatre, when he plays a romantic author, Rosemary Ames, Rochelle Hudson, Mona Barrie, Herbert Mundin and Henrietta Crossman will be seen with him.

SOCIETY HAUNTS ARE
BACKGROUND FOR FILM

As a dazzling background for the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "The Girl From Missouri," which opens tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre, studio architects designed replicas of many of society's most exclusive haunts.

Scenes in the picture which stars Jean Harlow, occur in millionaire's penthouse crowning New York's skyline, and in other fashionable resorts such as the Embassy Club and the Lido at Palm Beach, the Union Club in New York, the palatial steamer, Berengaria, and in Buckingham Palace, London.

Produced by Bernard Hyman and with Jack Conway as director, "The Girl From Missouri" has a cast that also includes Franchot Tone, Lewis Stone and Patsy Kelly.

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

HEART DISEASE AND MIDDLE AGE

We are shocked, almost every day, as we read of the sudden death from heart disease of some prominent middle-aged citizen.

Then, as we read the statistics, we find that heart disease stands at the head of the list as a cause of death.

As a matter of fact, what is known as the usual or regular form of heart disease—leaking valves—is really not as common as it was a few years ago because physicians have been warning and instructing the public that infection from teeth, tonsils, or other parts can cause rheumatism and heart disease, and so the number of deaths from this type of heart disease is actually less than formerly.

However, a statistical bulletin from one of the largest insurance companies shows that the increase in deaths from heart disease is due to more cases of damage to the heart muscle itself.

Now, as only a small proportion of these heart cases affecting the heart muscle are due to infection, the prevention of infection will not cut down the death rate to any great extent.

It is thought, therefore, that a great many of these cases are due simply to the fact that the heart muscle gets old (just as does the rest of the body) a little sooner in some individuals than in others. This is seen in the partial loss of hearing, in lessening of keenness of vision and brittleness of bones, all of which, while inconvenient, do not shorten life.

In the heart, however, these changes may be serious as the strength of the muscle wall of the heart becomes gradually less. Does this mean that mankind is becoming gradually weaker—and is not as rugged as his ancestors? No!

It simply means that so many more individuals live to reach middle age than in any previous time; that, naturally, there will be more of them to have this "heart breakdown" at or near fifty. When we remember that formerly three in every ten children born died at birth or during the first year, whereas now only about one in twenty dies at this time, the great number of deaths from heart disease is easily explained.

"The heart picture, therefore, on the whole, is far from discouraging."

Mermaids Ploughing Through Lake Ontario

Here's a part of the twenty-two young women who plunged into the icy waters of Lake Ontario for the five-mile marathon championship swim and the purse of $2,000 which awaited the winner. May Looney, Ohio youngster, ploughed through the waters at a steady pace and with great courage and stamina to capture the prize. Jean Sheather, of Toronto, finished second, and Charlotte Acres, of Vancouver, came home in third position. Another Vancouver girl, Ann Munidel, traveled the distance and tipped the finishing point in seventh position.

New York defeated Cleveland Indians, today. It was Gomez' twenty-fifth victory of the season against four defeats and kept the Yanks three and one-half games behind Detroit.

Mize connected for a double to left field off Bill Harris in the third with Benny Borgmann and Crabtree on base, and the hit scored both runners. In the eighth he doubled again, this time off Dick Barrett, to score George Toporcer with the final run of the combat. While Crabtree and Mize were sending the runs home, Johnny Michales was tight in the pinches.

The southpaw gave seven hits and walked three men. Albany left for home tonight, while Rochester will follow tomorrow morning. # Young Texan Sets All-Time Record In U.S. Golf Meet

Reynolds Smith Achieves Fifth Successive Extra-Hole Victory in His Bid for National Crown—Downs Ernest Pieper at Twenty-Third—Lawson Little Reaches Semi-Finals

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 13 (AP)—A five-star thriller by a twenty-two-year-old lad from the lone star state today stole the show in the United States amateur golf championship tournament.

Reynolds Smith, the Texas champion, achieved his fifth consecutive extra-hole victory, an all time tournament record, and swept into the semi-finals along with William Lawson Little, Jr., the strapping Californian with a consuming ambition to add the American crown to the British amateur title he already holds.

Smith furnished the real fireworks, however, after the busy Little, now the top-heavy favorite, had abruptly halted the sensational rush of nineteen-year-old Willie Turnesa, of New York, with a convincing 3 and 2 triumph in the quarter-finals.

GREAT BATTLE

The young Texan, on the brink of defeat at the hands of twenty-one-year-old Ernest F. Pieper, Jr., of San Jose, Calif., took advantage of a "break" to square the match on the eighteenth green and then fought through five spectacular extra holes before downing the Californian, one up at the twenty-third. In the morning he eliminated Winfield S. Day, Jr., of Chicago.

The outcome assured an all-Texas semi-final tomorrow in the upper half of the draw. Smith will meet his rival and roommate, twenty-five-year-old Davis (Specs) Goldman, who came from behind to whip the veteran Eddie Driggs, of New York, 2 and 1, after taking the measure of Fred Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, the young Southern titleholder, by the same margin in the fifth round.

Goldman is a metal worker, Smith an oil salesman. Both live in Dallas and have been struggling to make ends meet for their tournament expenses. Smith hiked to the Country Club this morning to save bus fare.

Little's opponent in the semi-final is Don Armstrong, twenty-nine-year-old Chicago whiskey salesman. Armstrong, a former Illinois State champion, signaled his most conspicuous performance in any national tournament by eliminating Ernest C. Corbin, of Long Beach, Calif., in the fifth round this morning, 4 and 3, and then overpowering his fellow townsman and the last of the ex-champions, Chick Evans, by the same score in the quarter-finals.

The semi-finals will be over the full thirty-six-hole route and will be much to the liking of the heavy hitting, robust Stanford University star.

Today furnished the toughest test

JORDAN WILL MEET GRIFFIN

The amateur fight game will trek the comeback trail tomorrow evening at the Tillamook Athletic Club gymnasium, Broad Street, when the recently-organized Victoria Athletic Club presents its first show of the season. Fourteen bouts are lined up on the programme, and local followers of the glove-throwing game are promised an interesting evening. The first mix will get under way at 8:30 o'clock.

Topping the lengthy card will be Charlie Jordan, British Columbia lightweight champion, and Bob Griffin, runner-up to the champion. In the provincial championships at New Westminster, the pair will step three two-minute rounds in what promises to be one of the best mixes on the card.

Fighting in the semi-windup position is Tommy Drysdale, well-known local scrapper, and George Kaiser, another Victoria exponent of the boxing game. The bout will mark the return to the ring of Drysdale, after about four years' absence. Many of the city's leading Simon-pure boxers are appearing in the other bouts included on the card.

Ross and McLarnin Wind Up Training For Saturday Bout

Principals Finish Workouts in Preparation for Welterweight Championship Fight at Long Island Bowl—Both in Fine Shape

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP).—Barney Ross and Jimmy McLarnin wound up hard training today for the first renewal of their welterweight championship feud at Madison Square Garden Bowl Saturday night.

Pop Foster, the benign Irishman who pilots McLarnin, may send his protegee to the gym tomorrow for a round or so of shadow boxing, but that will be all. Pop says the Vancouver boxer is in such prime condition more work will do more harm than good.

Much the same programme is planned for tomorrow by Art Winch and his colleagues who handle the champion. Ross may don his trunks for a round of shadow boxing and another of bag punching, but no boxing.

In a mid-town gymnasium today the champion went through a snappy six-round drill. He boxed a round each with Al Cassimini and Jimmy Murphy, a pair of rugged lightweight, and topped off his sparring with two speedy rounds against Phil Rafferty.

A mile downtown McLarnin went through his paces before a crowd that seemed equally enthusiastic. Following a brisk three-round drill with the reliable Calvin Reid, Philadelphia negro, the Canadian weighed exactly 146½ pounds, a half a pound under the welter limit.

He showed plenty of dash and fire and kept Reid in hot water all the time. Once Jimmy cut loose a left that knocked Reid six feet into the ropes.

Railbirds who have followed McLarnin's progress were unanimous that he is boxing better than he did before the fight was postponed several times last week.

Phil and Alan Taylor to Oppose Sarazen and Kirkwood

OFFICIALS of the Victoria Golf Club announced yesterday that Phil Taylor, popular professional at the Oak Bay course, and his son, Alan, will oppose and Gene Sarazen, former British and American open champion, and Joe Kirkwood, trick-shot artist and ranking golfer, in the eighteen-hole exhibition tomorrow afternoon at the Oak Bay links. The match will start at 1:30, and a large gallery is expected to follow the quartet. Following the match, Kirkwood will give a demonstration of the tricks which have made him famous throughout golfdom, as well as a lecture to the good and bad golfers alike, on the fundamentals of the game. Tickets may be secured from Secretary J. V. Perks, of the Victoria Golf Club.

EXPLANATION FOR YESTERDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOON

The Fighting Bridge—Abdul Hamid, Sultan of Turkey, nursed a lifetime grudge against his navy for having taken part in the deposition of his predecessor. He feared that its guns might again be trained on his palace, and so allowed his Minister of Marine to appropriate to his own private use a budget of from one to two million dollars annually allotted for naval repair. As a result, the Turkish navy was practically non-existent. A "cruiser" dispatched to a Red Sea port was left riding at anchor for so long that it was overgrown with tropical foliage and could not be moved. Another "warship," when sent to an Egyptian port, returned after a few months, reporting that it could not find its destination.

Between 1898 and 1910 the only "battleship" carried on the books of the Ministry of Marine was the famous Galata Bridge, which connects the suburb of Galata with Stamboul across the Golden Horn. The Minister even managed to let the bridge participate in the annual "fleet manoeuvres," although it was stationary and could not be moved except by magic.

A Submarine Watch—William Herbert, of Seattle, Wash., lost his watch and belongings in the wreck of the Ss. Islander, which struck an iceberg and sank off Juneau, Alaska, on August 14, 1901. In 1932 a salvage company raised the steamer which he had occupied as a passenger. His wool vest, with watch and chain, was in perfect condition. Upon winding, the timepiece began to run perfectly. His pistol, recovered at the same time, was useless, the ferrous metal having become completely decomposed.

PAUSE AFTER TEEING BALL NEEDED BEFORE SWING

A short time ago I was hit on the head with a club.

In spite of all my warnings about swinging when you're in danger of striking a person near you, a fellow swung away while my back was turned.

The blow was sharp enough to put me out temporarily. For several days after each time I bent over I got a dizzy feeling, particularly when teeing a ball. As I stood up I found myself decidedly unsteady.

It brought to mind a similar feeling which I'm sure many golfers have.

If you're feeling a bit out of sorts bending over to tee your ball will make you somewhat dizzy. You may not notice it at first, but it's best to pause a bit before you go to make your swing.

Sunderland XI Will Battle Aston Villa In Important Match

Interesting Fixture Carded in First Division of English Football—Arsenal to Face West Bromwich—Spurs Tackle Chelsea

LONDON, Sept. 13 (CP).—Lucky to escape injuries that have upset some of their opponents, Sunderland travel to Aston Villa, Saturday, for one of the most interesting tussles of the day's soccer card. Sunderland holds a slight advantage over the First Division of the English League, having garnered four wins and a draw in as many starts. On Saturday, the leaders will field the identical eleven they have used since the start of the season. The Villa has yet to select its line-up.

Preston North End, the second-placed, should have little trouble at Wolverhampton.

The Arsenal, league champions, are putting their very best line-up forth for the match at Highbury against West Bromwich, taking no chances. The Arsenal, with two victories and two ties, is three points back of Sunderland. James, Drake, Bowden and Beasley, who had a rest when the Arsenal played Glasgow Rangers to a tie Wednesday, will be back on duty.

Spurs Face Chelsea
The Spurs are retaining last week's eleven for the London Derby with Chelsea, who are replacing O'Dell with Barber.

Bolton Wanderers go to Notts County for what should be an easy assignment. Newcastle United are at home to Bradford. West Ham are still doubtful about the starting-line against Fulham, while the latter's eleven will be unchanged, although there was some doubt about Hammond's fitness.

Coventry City, still on top of the Third Division Southern Section, travel to Newport County. Crystal Palace will be at full strength against Luton Town.

In the Northern Section, Tranmere Rovers go to New Brighton, and are expected to return still in command of the division.

Arrows Defeat Clothiers, 4-3
Single to Rightfield Breaks Up Twelve-Inning Baseball Fixture at Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Sept. 13 (CP).—An intended piece of baseball strategy went awry tonight and, as a result, Arrows nosed out Clothiers, 4-3, to take a three-to-one lead in games in the four-out-of-seven-game series for the City Senior Baseball League championship.

With one man on base, two out, and the score tied, 3-3, in the last of the twelfth, the clothier board of strategy purposely passed Clarke to get at Henry, Arrow catcher. The plan had worked in the tenth, when Henry struck out, but this time the peppy backstop laced one of Larry Holden's slants to right field, scoring Smith, who had doubled, Gray and Henry.

With the winning run. Two walks, an error and a single gave Arrows two runs in the third, and Arne Miller hit for the circuit with the bases empty for the transferment's third marker in the sixth. The clothiers knotted the count in the eighth, scoring three times on two doubles, two singles and an error.

FINANCE - COMMERCE - MARKETS

Bonds Rally and Stocks Drift at New York Mart

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP).—The speculative pulse continued to beat feebly in the stock market today. A rise in United States Government bonds cheered the financial district but did not do much toward breaking the stalemate of the share list.

Price movements were mixed as trading dragged along. Steel common closed at 31.2, off a point. Turnover was only 415,660 shares. Possibility some corporations might fail to register their securities under the National Securities Exchange Act contributed to the hesitant air of the stock market.

American Can, American Sugar, International Business Machines, Bohn Aluminum, Air Reduction and Corn Products sold off fractionally to about a point and several preferred shares slipped sharply in late trading.

Most steel shares sagged with "Big Steel." Gold and silver shares reacted, American Smelting, Howe Sound and McIntyre Porcupine closing about a point or so off. Mostly utility shares sagged into new low ground for 1934. Ralls plodded along unevenly.

The bond market picture was somewhat brighter today, as the recently weak U.S. Government securities rallied and pressure was lifted from a number of other loans. Among corporation gainers were some loans of Consolidated Gas, Detroit Edison, Paramount, Shell, Union Oil and U.S. Rubber and Virginia Railway. Scattered declines of 1 to as much as 3 or more points were suffered by Southern Pacific, International Paper, Bethlehem Steel and Baltimore & Ohio.

Virginia Vane Says:

YEARNING OVER OLD LOVE ONLY AN ILLUSION

Dear Miss Vane: I have been married and divorced. I divorced my husband because my life with him was torture due to other women. Time after time I forgave him and tried to forget, but he couldn't give up his philandering. I have a very jealous nature, and the situation was finally more than I could stand. I caught him in one lie after another, and finally had to leave him because my health and mind were suffering.

Now he and I have been divorced for two years, and I have met one or two other men who attract me and with whom I might have been happy if I could forget my husband. But I can't get over him. I sit and brood about him. He has married again and is, I understand, doing the same thing to his new wife he did to me. I wish I could get him out of my mind. Sometimes I wonder whether I did not ruin my life forever when I let him go. He still seems to me the most perfect man in the world.—Helen.

If you thought over carefully what you've just said, Helen, you would admit it wasn't true. You don't really think your husband is the most perfect man in the world. You know he was capable of betraying your trust in him—not once, but a dozen times. You know, therefore, that he is lacking in moral fibre. You know that existence with him would be unendurable for any woman who was not prepared to be cynical about his polygamous habits.

Your mind isn't working at all when you say he is the one perfect man in the world. Your emotions are still getting the better of you. So is that habit of being in love with him. And your own dramatic instinct is hard at work to convince you that yours is a blighted life because one good-looking two-timer taught you a hard lesson.

You haven't been able to forget him because you've made no honest mental effort in the right direction. You've clung to a memory which you should have deliberately cut out of your thoughts. You've compared every man you met to that charming ne'er-do-well, who, of course, seems more and more fascinating as time blots out the recollection of his shortcomings.

And apparently you've given yourself plenty of time to brood. You haven't taken up any sort of interest or hobby which might conceivably occupy your mind and attention so that you could get back to a more healthy viewpoint.

You've brooded and allowed waves of emotion to wash over you, and you wonder now why you have so little hope of happiness in the future.

First of all, get it out of your head once and for all that a woman of your temperament could have grown used to a philandering husband. The very intensity of your regret over him proves that you could never have acquired the detached calm needed for dealing with a dyed-in-the-wool philanderer.

Secondly, give up the idea that your life is in any way blighted because you have one hard knock. You are not at all the central figure of a great tragedy. You have escaped from an impossible situation while you're still young and while there are still many chances of happiness for you.

In fact, give up pitying yourself and begin congratulating yourself. Stop that sentimental impulse which prompts you to yearn for what never was. You don't really want the man back again. You want him as he might have been if he wasn't what he is. And it's the height of futility to sit and brood about what you know to be an impossibility.

Give yourself a mental house cleaning and start right now living life to the full instead of wasting precious hours grieving over a bad mistake. There's plenty of happiness in the world for you if you'll make yourself receptive to it.

M.E.B.: I suggest that you talk over the affair frankly with your husband and ask him to co-operate with you in making the situation bearable for you both. This entanglement might drag on for years, and in the end its effect would hardly be beneficial to your two boys.

If your Tom does not feel that he wants to break off with you completely and start life anew with his affinity, you might suggest to him that he live apart from you until he has found out for himself how much the other woman means to him.

Since you and he are no longer in love with each other, you cannot be deeply hurt by this separation. And it might be that his absence from you would give him a clearer idea of what he wants to do.

You two can still live together as friends again if he chooses to come back to you. But you cannot live as you are at present. For the boys' sake, this tangle must be straightened out and all your lives put on a more decent basis.

What Today Means

"VIRGO"

If September 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a.m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. and from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

If you permit yourself to be inattentive on this date, you may not only get yourself into deep water, but inconvenience others to a degree where they will resent the results of your carelessness. It will be good judgment on your part to be very sure you are right, before entering into an argument on this date, as embarrassment might follow if you discovered you were in the wrong. There is a possibility of a message being given to you in a garbled fashion, so it might be advisable to verify the correctness of any form of communication which may be delivered on this date, if it involves an important

TOOK PILLS FOR YEARS, THEN CEREAL BROUGHT RELIEF

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Corrected His Constipation

If you are troubled by common constipation, read this letter:

"Just a word in appreciation of what your ALL-BRAN has done for my health. For years, I had been doing myself with pills and other dopes for constipation.

"I decided to try Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Now I am in good health, and haven't taken a drop of medicine for six months."—Thos. F. Little (address furnished upon request).

Headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness—any one of these may be caused by common constipation. Yet this condition can be corrected, usually, by eating a delicious cereal.

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to help promote regularity. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. How much softer than patent medicines! Two tablespoonsful of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal.

If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. At all grocers in the red and green packages. Get ALL-BRAN, not a part-bran product. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

matter. Spotty business may be indicative to a lack of interest in office detail work, this should be immediately checked, for complications might follow, if this is permitted. Housewives may receive unexpected visitors, so it might be well to see that everything is in order. Over-exertion might be productive of irritability on this date, so care should be exercised to avoid it. You may receive an appeal for help from a friend, who needs a helping hand now; if you are not in a position to grant his or her request do not resort to evasion, for the friend would possibly prefer your being frank. If invited to a social gathering you may be tempted to indulge in witticisms at someone else's expense, which might eventually prove a great mistake, so be careful not to indulge in personalities. This day should prove ideal for love affairs.

If a woman and September 14 is your birthday, you will be wise not to let formality become one of your pet obsessions. You possess a lot of tact and good common sense, be guided by these, not other people's opinions. While money may bring you a great deal, love will bring you much more, especially in the way of happiness.

The child born on September 14, when it arrives at school age, should be taught to be democratic. Capable and mentally alert this child will be popular if any tendency to be snobbish is suppressed at an early age. Its lovable disposition might be a temptation to spoil it through over-indulgence.

If a man and September 14 is your natal day, if you will become a good mixer and do not attach too much importance to conventionalities, success should be yours in any line of work you apply yourself to. Music, painting, sculpturing, educational work, and literature, offer unlimited opportunities for men born on this date. If you decide on a domestic life, there should be a great deal of happiness in store for you.

SAYS TELEGRAPHS PROVIDING GOOD GENERAL SERVICE

Canadian Government telegraphs are giving good service in the crowded cities and in the wilderness of the Yukon, according to F. E. Sims, Ottawa, general superintendent of telegraphs, who is paying Victoria a short visit during his survey of the telegraph department throughout Canada. With his wife, he is staying at the Empress Hotel. Settlers, miners and woodsmen of the North Country are optimistic regarding the return of better times, Mr. Sims said. He added that a recent gold strike near Carmax, Yukon Territory, is causing much fervor among the settlers.

DEATH ON THE DIAMOND

BY CORTLAND FITZSIMMONS

CHAPTER XI

Terry tore back to the press box and telephoned to his office from there, adding that the news that the game was called due to the accident. He then went over to the clubhouse and joined the others, who had made their calls by that time.

The police kept a firm barrier around the club and no one was allowed in. The press men cooled their heels in front of the door.

"This is one story you didn't get," Craven said with some satisfaction to Terry.

"Don't be too sure about that," Terry grinned.

"How could you scoop this one?" Mullins asked.

"Maybe I had a hunch," Terry replied.

"Look out your hunches don't get you into trouble," Reynolds warned. "You can't be lucky all the time."

"He's riding you," Craven said. "What does he know that we couldn't know or see? Here comes Kelly," he announced as he spotted the detective's huge bulk striding across the field. "Why did they send him? He was a flop on the last case."

Kelly tramped into the building and the men waited. The crowd was reluctantly thinning out, but the elevated platform was lined with a gaping black mass which allowed train after train to go downtown practically empty.

At a quarter to five a newboy was yelling "Extra!" outside the gates and was mobbed by the lingering crowd.

"What's the extra?" Mullins asked a special officer who had come over for a drink. Mullins hoped it would be The Journal.

"I grabbed one, but I ain't had a chance to look at it. Funny thing, you are right here where a thing happens and yet you have to buy a paper to know what it is all about." He spread the paper, and the press men gasped as they saw it was a copy of The Star, Terry's paper, with a big heading, reading:

SECOND MURDER AT BLUES FIELD

"How did you know it was a murder?" Mullins demanded.

"Took a guess."

"Guess, hell!" Reynolds sneered. "What's the idea?"

"No idea," Terry replied, and earned his neck to read the account in the paper.

"Dirkin, prize slugger and second baseman on the Chicago Butchers, knocked out a home run to death," was the opening sentence. "The story went on to describe the events leading up to the strange run and final fall of Dirkin."

"Your imagination will get you in jail one of these days," Doc Biers snorted.

Kelly appeared in the doorway, "I want one of you—," he began, and then spied Terry. "Hello, Burke. Come in here a minute, will you?"

"Can you beat that?" Craven complained. "I'd rather have that guy's luck than a licence to steal."

"How did he know so much about how it was done?" Reynolds sneered. "Tell me that. He was there with the rest of us. He couldn't know unless he had some inside information."

"Did he run down with the rest of us?" Mullins asked.

"He waited for me to go out before he did," Bill Hoyer recalled.

"The kid is foxy," Craven said. "He waited until we left and then he called his paper and gave them a lead. Don't be soreheads. He just out-thought us, that's all."

"It looks and sounds phony to me," Mullins said, and looked at Reynolds for corroboration.

Inside, Pop, Rawlins, the Chicago manager and the doctor were waiting when Kelly returned with Terry. There was no sign of the body anywhere.

"Now," Kelly turned to Terry, "I've had several versions of the game and I want you to give me the dope as you recorded it up to the time Dirkin fell."

"He pulled out his notes and read without interruption until he had finished."

"That agrees with what Rawlins and I told you," Pop said when Terry had finished. "I know what goes on during a game."

"All right, Pop," Kelly said impatiently. "I wanted to check from every angle. Do you know what this means to me? I've got to get at the bottom of this one or I'm through on the force. Remember Whiplash?"

"Think of what it means to me!" Pop retorted.

"Yeah," Rawlins broke in. "How do you think I feel with my best man knocked off this way? I'll have to build up a new team."

The medical examiner came in then.

"What killed him?" Kelly asked. "I don't know. He was poisoned."

"With what?"

"I can't say. There are no marks on the body. His mouth isn't burned in any way, but from the condition of his eyes and the convulsive state of the muscles, it is clearly a poison case."

"When can you let me know?" Kelly demanded.

"Can't say. If it's a common poison, we will locate it quickly. If it is something rare and unusual, we will have to experiment."

"Make it as snappy as you can, will you, Doc?" Kelly begged.

"There is one slight puncture on the fleshy part of his right hand below his little finger. It may be important and it may not. You might save yourself trouble later if you located anything that he handled during the afternoon. May be a false scent, but it's worth considering. So long."

"What could he have been handling during the course of the game?" Kelly asked Rawlins.

"I don't know. There wouldn't be anything much except bats and balls," Rawlins replied.

"I want the bats and balls used in today's game put aside and locked up," Kelly ordered.

Rawlins called one of his men and gave instructions that Kelly's orders were carried out.

"If it had anything to do with bats and balls, wouldn't all the other men be affected too?" Terry asked.

Kelly considered a moment. "There is something to what you say, young fellow, at that; but I can't take any chances."

"It could be something to do with bats, though I don't see how or why," Rawlins said. "Dirkin had a favorite bat and rarely used any other. Right after he was pulled out of the game, Doyle wandered all the way over to our dugout and sort of looked around."

"I thought that wasn't allowed," Kelly said.

"It isn't. He was sort of absent-minded and went back when one of my men guyed him. I don't know what he wanted over there unless it was to do a little snooping," Rawlins suggested.

"It might be just that very thing!" Kelly grabbed at the idea. "I'd like to have that particular bat brought up here."

"I'll go down myself," Rawlins offered.

"Just a minute," Kelly said. "I'll send a man with you."

"I don't need a guard," Rawlins protested.

"No reflections, Rawlins," Kelly hastened to say, "but murder, you know, is a peculiar thing. While you and your team have everything to lose by Dirkin's death, yet there could easily be other reasons. We have to protect ourselves."

Rawlins went out accompanied by a policeman, and was gone for so long a time that they all became uneasy.

"Dirkin's favorite bat is not down there anywhere," Rawlins finally reported.

"And we looked out on the diamond last night," the policeman went on. "It must be there!" Kelly was insistent.

"But it isn't. It's gone."

"Where is your bat boy?" Kelly demanded of Rawlins.

"Our regular boy was sick today," Kelly said, "handling the bats, then?" Kelly asked.

"A new boy. Our bat boy sent us a note saying he was sick and sent a friend to take his place," Rawlins explained.

"Who was the boy today?"

"I don't know. I have Pietro's note in my pocket somewhere. I'd forgotten all about it." Rawlins dug into his pocket until he produced a half-sheet of cheap paper on which was scrawled the message he had mentioned.

"And this new boy—wasn't he down there when you were looking for the bat?"

Rawlins shook his head. "We went over to the dugout and hunted for both the boy and the bat. None of the men remember seeing the kid after Dirkin went to bat."

"That's bad."

"I'll see if we can locate the boy through Pietro," Rawlins suggested and began searching in his pockets for a notebook.

"Is that the funny little hunchback that you've always had?" And then as he waited for Rawlins, "Where is Pietro?"

"That's what I am looking for," Rawlins said impatiently. "He has an uncle over on Jerome Avenue and I was supposed to go over there tonight and have a real Italian supper. I had the address somewhere. Yes, here it is." He handed it to Kelly.

Kelly called information and asked if there was a telephone under that name at that address. He waited for a few seconds.

"Hello," he heard. "I want to talk to Pietro. What? No, no. I want to talk to Pietro. Where is he?"

There was a long wait, during which time Kelly made impatient faces into the transmitter. No, no, Kelly said. "I'm here. I the park and Pietro is not here. I thought he was sick." Another wait and then Kelly hung up in disgust.

"That was the kid's uncle. He says Pietro is not sick; that he is over here."

"But he wasn't here. It was a strange boy, who came with this note," Rawlins insisted.

"It's getting worse and worse," Kelly complained. "Now, what does this bat boy business mean?" He thought for a moment and then turned to Terry. "Go back in your notes and report back here as soon as you can. I want you to find Pietro. If you can't locate the boy, see if his uncle knows anything about the substitute Pietro sent."

Doyle, dressed for the street, came in and was clearly surprised.
